Welcome to a different world

This picturesque, historic fishing village promises visitors a wonderful half-day out. Clovelly offers a calm reflection of the days when speed, noise and stress were not what they are today. It allows the visitor to relax and imbibe the spirit of a quiet community, focussed on the lives of its people rather than electronics and world economics. This atmosphere is embodied in a traffic-free, cobbled street with flower-strewn cottages, tumbling down a cleft in the 400-foot cliff to the tiny working port and 14th-century quay bringing glorious views along the way.

There are many literary connections; Charles Kingsley lived here, Charles Dickens wrote about it, J M Turner painted it and the artist Rex Whistler was inspired to draw a Clovelly design.

Come and discover Clovelly!

Visitor Centre

There are shops, a cafeteria and the must-see film show before you visit the craftyard and then walk on down the cobbles to explore the village.

Clovelly Court Gardens

These lie next to the 13th-century parish church of All Saints at the top of the village. They are a classic example of a restored Victorian walled kitchen garden with fruit, vegetables, colourful herbaceous borders, and magnificent lean-to glasshouses sheltering Mediterranean fruits. Walk through a gate onto Clovelly Court Great Terrace and enjoy glorious views of Lundy and Bideford Bay on a fine day.
